SHAMBLS Puzzles

So where does the word SHAMBLS come from? It is an acronym of my family including my furry family, but is also an apt name for a puzzle brand. The word comes from the word “Shambles—chaos, muddle, confusion, disorder” which is exactly what these puzzles do in the mind of their hapless victims. The puzzle range encompasses African themes and are made in small easy to pack dimensions ideal as a souvenir with a made in South Africa flavour. This range will be constantly expanding so keep a lookout for them. Custom puzzles can be made to reflect your corporate identity, minimum quantities will apply.

Cutting & engraving guide

So you want to have something laser engraved? What will it cost? There are three factors that influence the price:

1. Cost of material (this is generally the cheapest part of the equation)
2. Time on the laser (this covers wear and tear ,maintenance and electricity) The equation is normally R7-R10 per minute
3. Labour cost—this covers any additional work eg. Painting, gluing and artwork.

I bring in a fourth factor, which is what would a reasonable person pay for a similar product?, so I frequently reduce the pricing accordingly.

So practically what would something cost? I will try break it down.

Cutting on a laser is much quicker than engraving, therefore much cheaper. So you could for example do a light cut to create an outline instead of a fill engrave. As illustrated on 50mm x 50mm blocks, the time difference is from 32 seconds for the cutout to 2 minute & 16 seconds for the engrave. So as a rough estimate the cut in this case would cost R12 all inclusive and the engrave R25—R30.

Engraving in most cases does give a superior result , so to work estimates of what it would cost to put your company logo or name onto something see the picture below

The times taken for the three sizes 75x12mm, 150x24mm & 250x100mm are 53 seconds, 2 minute 41 seconds & 16 minutes 26 seconds respectively. Approx costs are therefore; R15, R35 & R175 respectively.
